Milly Akins says that she is a Floridian at heart. Born in New York, she moved to Central Florida at a young age. She met her husband Daniel in Orlando, where they married and had their son Hudson, now a fifth grader at Surfside. The family often talked about “going coastal” and how one day they would live, and enjoy life by the water; and finally, they just did it.

“We love everything about this community. Coastal living is amazing and has so much to offer. The ever changing water views are magical. It can be tranquil one moment and ferocious the next. Playing, boating, fishing, surfing, admiring and protecting our waters and its inhabitants are a few of the things we most enjoy,” Milly Akins said.

“And to think that you can have all of this and excellent schools and a community that we are proud to call home.”

Outside work and school, the Akins family enjoys boating, whether it’s crossing the big blue, cruising up and down the Intracoastal Waterway or anchoring out around the corner at Dragon Point.

“I love how our community is coming together to stop ongoing pollution, reverse years of neglect and revive our waterways so that someday future generations can enjoy them just like yesterday’s generations,” Milly Akins said.

After settling in beachside, Milly decided it was time to help others find their own version of coastal living. She is a real estate agent on the Nick Farinella Team at Coldwell Banker Residential Real Estate.
